TOWN TALK

By The Man About Town.

The mainland election, the sensational campaign of Hearst and Hughes and the great struggle for control of the next House of Representatives are not so full of interest to some of our local citizens as most of us perhaps think. A friend of mine was talking politics the other day with a prominent gentleman, known all over the group and perhaps some day to be recipient of large political honors. They were talking of campaign news on election day. "Well," remarked the friend in question, "we ought to know the results in New York by two or three in the afternoon." "Why," said the other, "is there an election on the mainland too?"

I hear that the scheme to limit "society" in Honolulu to eighty—I think that's the number—has met with considerable frost. The scheme, as I have heard it, was to organize a cotillion club, or something of that sort, the membership of which should include all the people in Honolulu "socially worth knowing," and should be limited to eighty. The membership fee to this exclusive organization was to be $40 for men and $15 for women, and the money was to be used to give a certain number of very select and perfectly appointed and conducted Germans during the season.

One of the first rocks on which the project struck, as I have been told, was the refusal of a certain woman, without whom it was thought hopeless to undertake the scheme, to go into it, at all. She said she had too many friends to think of cutting a lot of them, as would be inevitable if "society" were to be limited to eighty.

Most people are heartily glad that the campaign is drawing to a close. It has been a monotonous one, even if quite strenuous as far as the exertions of candidates are concerned, for the only issue has been the threadbare one of police administration, which we have had drummed into our ears for two solid years. "Give us a rest," is the plea of the average citizen and after next Tuesday he may hope to have the plea granted.

I heard of a good "come back" at the farewell dinner to George Henshall at the Seaside the other night. Chester Doyle was called upon to make a few remarks. He announced, by way of adding merriment to the occasion, that he would speak in his acquired language, the Japanese, and Mr. C. Shiozawa of the Hawaii Shinto would interpret for him. And then Doyle rattled off something in Japanese. Everybody was expecting when he stopped per in anticipation that Shiozawa would relate some highly interesting facts. But Shiozawa merely replied: "The gentleman speaks in such pure Japanese that I fear I can not understand him."

And then everybody laughed but Chester.

I notice by the reports in the papers that Charlie Hustace, whom I am trying to elect supervisor for Honolulu, is one of the speakers at a large majority of the meetings. The papers always say he makes a hit with his Hawaiian speeches, and I think they are right, for I have heard him several times and he always has the meeting with him. But as yet I haven't learned what he says to the Hawaiians. In none of the reports of the meetings is there given a translation of his Hawaiian speeches. Some time, after the election is all over, I am going to ask Charlie to give me a translation of one of his Hawaiian speeches, just to see what there was in it that carried the crowd with him so.

There seems to be a general expectation that if the national elections next Tuesday go Democratic we shall have a much larger crop of the Unaffiliated. Then if the next President is a Democrat, they may become plentiful enough to elect a delegate. We might have McClanahan for governor, Thayer for attorney general, Watson for federal attorney, Mossman for treasurer and Terrill for superintendent of public works.

After this election is over—and I am thankful that it will be over in three days—I am going to get Chairman Herbert Mossman of the Democratic County Committee to write a history of the schemes that have been tried on him to extract money from the Democratic fund. I heard one of the candidates say the other day that if all cost as much as it was represented by some of the native runners, for evening meetings, John D. Rockefeller would soon be worth five billion dollars instead of only one billion.

I do not know what their authority is but some of the Democrats are declaring that Sam Kalua, the strong voiced orator of the Democrats, was responsible for the Rev. Stephen Desha, the Republican orator, hurrying back to Hilo. Sam is declared to have made the debate at the corner of Bethel and King streets so hot for the Rev. Desha that the latter, it is claimed, took the first available boat to Hilo. I can not vouch for the accuracy of the story, but it is current talk among a considerable element of the Democratic party.

KINAU ARRIVED WITH SMALL CROWD

VESSEL CAME IN EARLY FROM HILO AND WAY PORTS—WENT TO ASSIST CHUSA MARU.

The steamer Kinau arrived at 5:29 o'clock this morning from Hilo and way ports. She brought a small sized crowd of passengers and had the usual cargo of freight for this port.

High Sheriff William Henry returned from an official trip to Hawaii. Captain J. R. Parker of the Hawaiian Dredging Company came down from Maui on business.

A. Haneberg arrived from a business trip to the other islands.

P. J. Hare, the postal inspector, returned from an official trip.

Mrs. Kamaka Stillman returned from Hawaii.

Mrs. E. A. McInerney and Mrs. Mary McInerney returned from a trip to the Big Island.

Dr. V. Norgaard returned from an official trip to the other islands.

Bishop Rastarick and J. T. McCrosson were among the arriving passengers by the Kinau.

Immediately following her arrival the Kinau was provided with a new 9-inch Manila hawser and hurried out to assist the Japanese steamer Chusa Maru which is ashore off the harbor entrance.
